Revised 11/01/2010

It is possible to receive a limited number of transfer credits at the School of Law (i.e., counting toward the J.D.) for courses completed at another academic institution. The rules governing this process can be found in Academic Regulations, Sections 307-309. Students who plan to take any academic courses outside the School of Law must apprise the administration of this intention in writing, using this form, before registering for the courses.

If you plan to:

1) Register for courses at another law school during a summer term, you must obtain approval of the course plan from the Assistant Dean for Student Services;
2) Register for courses at another Drexel college, you must obtain approval of the course plan from the Assistant Dean for Student Services;
3) Apply for visitor status at another law school during Fall or Spring semesters, you must obtain permission to visit from the Senior Associate Dean of Students and approval of the course plan from the Assistant Dean for Student Services; or,
4) Pursue another degree (i.e., concurrent with the J.D.), you must obtain permission to pursue the concurrent degree from the Senior Associate Dean for Academic and Faculty Affairs, who also must approve your course plan.

Additionally, students should be mindful of the following credit limits: Summer terms, six (6) semester credits per summer; Drexel colleges, four (4) total semester transfer credits (or six quarter credits); ABA-approved law schools, 35 total semester transfer credits.
